

What is Pulse Dance Company?

Some students choose to make dance their primary extracurricular activity, and they participate in dance at a very high level. These are the members of our youth and teen performing Dance Company known as “Pulse”. The focus of the Company is to provide an opportunity for the serious and experienced dance student to broaden their dance training and grow in performance skills. Pulse Dance Company is not an enrollment in an “extra dance class”; it is an endeavor that is akin to being on a school sports team or cheering squad, and it requires a sincere year-round commitment.

The Studio for the Living Arts’ faculty hold auditions for Pulse Dance Company placements during the months of June and July. Preparing for auditions is highly suggested, and the best way to do that is to get educated about the process. First time auditions: If you find that your dancer is expressing interest in auditioning this year, it is highly recommended that you set up a meeting through the office as soon as possible. At that time we can evaluate the dancer’s training schedule and make any adjustments that may be helpful. We can also answer any questions you have about Pulse, and we always recommend reading the Pulse Guidelines. For more information, please contact Susan Cloutier, Director: studioforthelivingarts@yahoo.com